HIGHWAY ROUTES DEFINED BY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Road Twenty Feet Wide, With Concrete Base and Asphalt Surface, for This City.

The county board of supervisors held an adjourned session last Monday in Redwood City, the greater part of which was devoted to a discussion of the proposed system of county roads and bond issue. The following members were present: Wm. H. Brown, (presiding), D. E. Blackburn, Jos. M. Francis and John MacBain.

The reports of Surveyor Neuman, Assistant Engineer Morton and the advisory board were taken up and after careful consideration the routes of the different roads were finally agreed upon with the material of which they are to be constructed.

The bay shore road is to be built along the present road from the San Francisco city limits of South San Francisco, with an asphalt surface sixteen feet in width, and with four-foot macadam shoulders; asphaltic surface to have a concrete base five inches in depth.

Through South San Francisco the road will be built along San Bruno road to Baden avenue, thence along Baden avenue to Linden avenue, thence to the left, crossing the Southern Pacific railroad at right angles to the present San Bruno road; thence along the San Bruno road to the southern city limits of South San Francisco. This portion of the road is to be paved for a width of twenty feet with a five inch concrete base and asphaltic wearing surface, and four-foot macadam shoulders.

Through the city limits of San Mateo, Hillsborough and Redwood City, twenty-four-foot asphalt pavement on a five-inch concrete base, with seven and one-half-foot macadam shoulders.

Upon motion of Supervisor Blackburn, seconded by Supervisor MacBain, it was decided to appoint a commission of members, one from each road district, to have charge of road building in the event of the success of the bond election.

FREE $350 PIANO CONTEST BECOMING VERY ACTIVE

Commencing Next Monday, Votes Will Be Given Away by Merchants Only to Buyers of $5 Due Bills.

The plain words to candidates published in The Enterprise last week was the means of causing a large number of outstanding votes to be cast in the Free $350 Piano Contest, which totaled 91,301, of which Fern Mahoney received 34,243, Alice McGrath 30,482, Florence Robinson 20,721, and Emma Johnson 5855.

Fern Mahoney, having received the greatest increase in votes, is entitled to this week's silverware prize, a sugar spoon and butter knife.

Next week's special prize will as usual be one of silverware, and a good one, too. A little extra energy will win it.

A meeting of the merchants conducting the contest was held yesterday when it was determined that commencing next Monday morning, February 3d, votes will be given only with the purchase of $5 due bills. Heretofore 100 votes have been given away with each $1 cash purchase. With the purchase of a $5 due bill double the quantity will be given, or 1000 votes.

Young ladies, you have had time enough to become familiar with the conditions of this contest and are now in a position to sell many of these due bills. Explain to those who would buy them from you what your ambition is—to obtain the free piano—and tell them that they can use these due bills when making purchases in smaller amounts, as each one has coupons that will be cancelled at the time of purchase.

It was finally decided at the meeting of merchants that no opening of nominations for new candidates will be done. The present five candidates will be the only contestants until the close of the contest.

Don't forget that the firms associated with The Enterprise in the contest are, J. Carmody, groceries; South City Pharmacy, drugs, etc; W. C. Schneider, dry goods and furnishings; South City Lumber and Supply Co., lumber, etc.

A good way to obtain many thousands of votes in addition to those given by merchants is to induce people to subscribe for The Enterprise. With every NEW $2 cash subscription you will receive 1000 votes.

The standing of the candidates is now as follows:

Name	Votes
Alice McGrath	158,283
Alice Iacau	85,395
Florence Robinson	53,937
Fern Mahoney	48,677
Emma Johnson	34,790

GRAND JURY FILES REPORT

Last Wednesday the grand jury delivered its report to Superior Judge Buck.

Expert Haven examined into the affairs of every county official and make many valuable suggestions to the court and board of supervisors.

The report recommended that the salaries of some of the officials be increased.

The expert states that the custom of the board of supervisors charging the expense of building bridges to the general fund is wrong. During 1912, $50,000 was spent for bridges in this manner.

An indictment was found against Lester Danz, charging him with committing an assault on Chris Stader at Beresford on the night of November 25th last with intent to kill.

WOMEN'S WORK
IN NEW ROCHELLE

How Beautiful New York Suburb Was Cleaned Up.

CHILDREN WERE A BIG HELP

Taught In Schools the Need of Town Improvement, They Spurred on Their Parents to the Work—Civic Pride Has Come to Stay.

Judged by their accomplishments in the last ten months, the members of the civic section of the Woman's club of New Rochelle are as capable as municipal housekeepers as they are in their individual fireside fields. Since this civic section was organized it has done more to clean up New Rochelle than any other betterment organization. Figuratively speaking, it has washed New Rochelle's face, combed its hair, dressed it in clean garments and is taking effective steps to keep it from being annoyed by mosquitoes and infected by flies.

The first thing the Woman's club civic section attempted was to clean up the town. New Rochelle, beautiful as it is when looked at from the point of view of the average visitor, used to have many unswept and untidy corners. Various back yards, back streets and vacant lots were like the "junk rooms" in a big house—places in which all sorts of unsightly trifles were allowed to accumulate. These municipal housekeepers, after looking over their common habitation, began a vigorous campaign to get people interested in sprucing up—to arouse civic pride, in fact. In this work the boys and girls of the town—the school children—were invaluable. They spurred on their parents.

It was not long before the agitation produced results. The streets and vacant lots were cleared of papers and all sorts of debris. A passion for cleanliness seemed to sweep over New Rochelle. Photographs were taken before the work began and after it was completed. The contrasting pictures aroused still greater enthusiasm. Singularly enough—contrary even to ordinary human nature—the spirit of cleanliness seems to have established itself permanently in New Rochelle, even in places where once it was an unwelcome guest.

In practically all these movements for the betterment of New Rochelle the children of the place took an important part. So essential is the interest and enthusiasm of the children to the upbuilding of the perfect city and

THE CHILD GARDEN.

And surely a real "child garden" should be in the open air! Just to get the problem into debatable form I would submit a few practical suggestions: First, that every schoolhouse should be provided with a playground, containing at least ten square yards for each pupil. For every dollar spent on the building half a dollar ought to be spent on the playground, and I can hardly conceive of a better investment for the community. Personally if I had to take my choice for my own child in one of our large cities between a school without a playground and a playground without a school I would choose the playground.

Second, let there be organized as an auxiliary department of the kindergarten * * * for the younger children a capacious sand pit, where they can grub and dig to their hearts' content. A load of "tailings," blocks and short boards of all sizes from a sawmill or carpenter's shop for building purposes, a few cheap accessories for the Robinson Crusoe and "Indians" play, would suffice. For the larger youngsters plain, strong swings, bars, rings, trapezes, vaulting horses, seesaws, etc., could be constructed, and, of course, large spaces kept always clear, leveled and free from mud or standing water, for hockey, football, baseball, prisoner's base and all the running games.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson.

the making of good citizens that a great deal of attention has been paid to devising means for training the continually effervescing energy of youth to the best advantage. With the realization of these endless possibilities in the citizens of tomorrow the public-spirited women of New Rochelle are organizing children's civic clubs in the schools of the city.

REST ROOM IS FOR USE.

Idaho Falls Has Comfortable, Convenient Place For Use of Women.

The city of Idaho Falls, Ida., has equipped and maintains a rest room for the free use of all women.

It is warm and comfortable. There are comfortable chairs, a table, lavatory and toilet facilities.

In commenting on the new idea the Idaho Falls Times says:

When you come to town with your children and your shopping is done and you are waiting for the rest of the family to go home, just tell them they will find you at the rest room and to drive around there for you. Then you and the children can take it easy until the rest of the folks are ready to drive out.

If you want to meet your neighbors when you come to town tell them they will find you at the rest room. The rest room is in the old city hall, on Park avenue, almost directly across the street from the new city hall. It is yours to use; use it; that's what it is for, and you place yourself under no obligation to any one by using it. It was fitted up and is maintained by the city, not by individuals, for the use of all women, especially for the use of farmers' wives and children.

The Village Improvement society is adding a few feminine touches to the rooms. Drop in, if only out of curiosity to see what the city is doing for the comfort of the women who make Idaho Falls their trading point.

TOWN PLANNING.

Look After the Whole Community, Not a Part of It.

In an address before the congress of horticulturists in Jamestown, O., some weeks ago a speaker said, "It is the duty of village improvement societies and park superintendents to direct their attention to the preparation of (town) plans rather than to expend all their efforts and money on a small area or other minor improvements at hazard or upon general clearing up operations, street lighting and the like that should be executed by the town officers through their regular appropriations." He added that public spirit, wisely directed by a well thought out plan, could transform a town in from five to eight years, but he said there must be locally a leader in the movement "who is big enough to grasp the whole conception and persistent enough to hold fast against criticism until it is well under way." This means self sacrificing effort at first, but ultimately it is sure of general approval, and happily almost every town contains such a leader.

European cities pride themselves on clean streets above all other public works, and some cities are famous the world over for the splendid condition of their public thoroughfares. One facetious writer says that in Berlin they not only wash the pavements every morning, but wipe them too.

Old "Eagle Eye's" Mean Trick.

"Jake Beckley was one of the few players who ever made me look like a monkey," said old Honus Wagner of the Pirates the other day. "It happened in Louisville years ago, and Tim Hurst was umpiring. I was on first base and saw Jake hide the ball under his arm. I told him several times I was wise to such bush league stuff, but Jake pretended he did not hear. Finally, when Hurst was not looking, I grabbed the ball from under Jake's arm and threw it into right field. Then I started for second base, only to have the pitcher throw another ball to the second baseman, and I was run down between the bases. I felt so cheap I could have dropped clean through to China. Beckley had been holding a dummy ball."—New York Press.

Lend a Hand Anywhere.

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billow,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors
Anchored yet within the bay.
You can lend a hand to help them
As they launch their boats away.

If you cannot in the harvest
Garner up the richest sheaves
Many a grain both ripe and golden
May the careless reapers leave.
Go and glean among the briers
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

Do not, then, stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do.
Fortune is a fickle goddess.
She will never come to you.
Go and toll in any vineyard.
Do not fear to do and dare.
If you want a field of labor
You can find it anywhere.
—Margaret E. Sangster.

Better Off.

One day during a rehearsal at His Majesty's theater in London, Sir Herbert Tree told a rather incompetent young actor to step back a little. The actor did so, and the rehearsal proceeded. After a few seconds Sir Herbert repeated his request. "A little farther back, please."

The actor stepped back again. Sir Herbert surveyed him critically for a moment and continued the rehearsal. Then for a third time Sir Herbert asked him to stand back a little.

"But," protested the actor, "if I stand farther back I shall be off the stage altogether."

"Yes," agreed Sir Herbert, "that will be much better."

Saved Himself.

Soon after Speaker Champ Clark had been married he left home one morning in a fit of mental abstraction and forgot to give his wife the customary farewell kiss.

On the way down the walk he remembered and at once knew he was in trouble. Wondering what excuse he could offer, he turned back to the house. In a flash of inspiration he remembered the date. Reaching the door, to which Mrs. Clark came with rather a grim smile, Champ held up one hand and shouted:

"April fool!"—Washington Star.

Why He Wept.

At a reception one night a loud voiced young man was invited to sing. Desultory applause followed, and he responded with a vociferous rendering of "My Old Kentucky Home." The hostess was passing among her guests, beaming at the success of her entertainment and sure that everybody was having a good time when suddenly, to her surprise, she came upon a middle aged man but slightly known to her who was weeping silently but bitterly in a secluded corner. Thinking that his heart had been touched by the old song, she asked sympathetically:

"ARE YOU A KENTUCKIAN?"

"Why do you weep? Are you a Kentuckian?"

"No, madam," he replied. "I am a musician."—Woman's Home Companion.

The completion of the Bay Shore Tunnels has placed South San Francisco on the main lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and forty passenger trains per day connect it with the outside world.

Owing to the completion of the Dumbarton Bridge and Cutoff, South San Francisco will soon have all railroads which center in San Francisco passing through its midst.

Many industries are already established here, chief of which are the Western Meat Company, the Wool Pullery, the Soap Works, the Steiger Pottery Works, the W. P. Fuller White Lead Works, the South San Francisco Lumber and Supply Company, the Pacific Coast Steel Company, the Pacific Car and Equipment Company, the Standard Corrugated Pipe Works, and other enterprises, all of which are in operation to-day. The Meese Gottfried Machinery Company and the Enterprise Foundry of San Francisco have each recently made purchases of land, and South San Francisco is plainly destined to fulfill all that its promoters had hoped.

REV. HORN RESIGNS
HIMSELF TO FATE

Still declaring that he is the victim of a "twin" brother, Rev. Frank Horn of Richmond, who is lodged in the County Jail at Martinez, awaiting a bigamy trial on a charge brought by Mrs. Eva May de Tovea of San Francisco, who is suing him for divorce, has apparently resigned himself to his fate. He stated that, although he would not forsake the belief that his "twin" brother was the cause of all the trouble he is shouldering, he was willing to let matters take their own course.

His mother, Mrs. May McIntyre, and his sister, Grace, who came to Martinez from Portland, have been constant visitors to the cell of the imprisoned pastor. Mrs. McIntyre reiterated her statement that her son is the victim of his "twin" brother. Both women have been in consultation with Attorney C. A. Clark, who will act as Horn's counsel at his trial. Despite the requests of the mother and attorney that the accused pastor be given a speedy trial, no date has yet been set for the preliminary hearing.

The former pastor has stocked himself with religious books and spends the greater part of his time in reading and reciting prayers. "I have placed all my faith in the Lord," he said, "and feel certain that I will be vindicated of these charges."

TAXATION BILL
NOW IN SENATEAssembly Without a Dissenting
Vote Passes Measure

Without a dissenting vote, yet with considerable misgivings, the Assembly passed the revenue and taxation measure, which during the next two years, it is variously estimated, will increase the State's revenue by a sum of between $3,500,000 and $5,000,000.

There was objection to the bill in the Assembly, but when it came to the question on final passage there was not a "no" vote. While Assemblyman George B. Finnegan of Nevada City has been making the open fight upon the rates of taxation fixed in the bill, his fight has been that the rates are not high enough and that they do not form a tax that will be equal to the tax paid by the common citizen.

He proposed a general increase in the rates as fixed by the committee report, and raised not only the public service corporations, but the insurance companies and the banks. The banks were not affected by the committee report. Finnegan discussed his amendment for half an hour and asked many questions, but admitted he did not believe his amendment had a chance. It did not. The vote against was 60 to 7.

Then Assemblyman G. W. Wyllie of Dinuba wanted to know a great many things that no one seemed able to tell him. He wanted to know about the equality in taxes as specified in the Constitution; he wanted to know if an equalization had been attempted; he persisted that he did not understand the measure, and stated he believed few members of the House did.

The bitter pill was swallowed by the Assembly, but not without making a wry face.

A PLEA FOR PLAYGROUNDS.

Suppose the more fortunate members of the community also were denied the opportunities which they now enjoy for recreation and amusement. Suppose, if you will, that laws were passed prohibiting them from running automobiles, from playing golf or tennis, and imagine the effect upon them of the enforcement of such requirements. And yet for all practical purposes these are the conditions that exist among the poorer members of the community. They are as virtually denied opportunities of recreation as if they were living under such a statute.—Lawrence Veiller.

WINTER IMPROVEMENT WORK.

What to Do to Help Your Town During Cold Weather.

When the winter season is on it is necessary to regulate dance halls, motion picture and vaudeville shows. Establish rest rooms or comfort stations. In your club life organize civic leagues for the study of these and kindred topics. Form a civics current events class. Let each member take up a separate branch of work and stick to it until she has mastered every phase of it. Let her bring one phase of that branch to the class at each meeting. If each one of a class of ten would do this, at the end of a club year many phases of civic work would be intelligently grasped, and the civic league could then take up its chosen task, well fitted to engineer it to a successful conclusion.—American City.

Value of Civic Beauty.

We think ourselves far ahead of Europe, and in some respects we are, but the Germans and the French builders of cities have learned what many Americans do not yet appreciate—that civic beauty has a practical value closely related to nearly every form of trade.—Denver Republican.

Ugly cities are a reproach to ordinary good sense, and America is fast learning the lesson. Out of the quickening of civic pride, now so conspicuous in many places, is bound to come a finer town life everywhere.—New York Herald.

WOMEN BEGIN NEW
REIGN OF TERRORSuffragettes Smash Hundreds of Windows in London

As a protest against the withdrawal of the franchise bill by the Government, the suffragists of London have resumed their militant tactics. While a deputation which the Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd-George had refused to see was trying to force its way into Parliament against the overwhelming force of police, and the members were being placed under arrest for resisting the officers, other bands of women went through Whitehall, breaking the windows of the Government offices, and through Cockspur street, where the great plate-glass windows in the establishments of shipping companies ruthlessly were smashed.

The women also visited Oxford, Regent and other streets in the shopping district, where similar damage was done. Later mail boxes were attacked, quantities of liquid being poured into them. In the outlying suburbs, too, the suffragists took steps to bring the cause before the public by damaging property. Twenty-one women were arrested in the vicinity of the Parliament building, but were allowed out on bail after the House rose. Most of the police stations had one or more prisoners charged with destroying property.

The demonstration in Whitehall was not as large as some of those previously held, the force of police and drenching rain militating against any great turnout. The wildest excitement prevailed, however, and besides protecting property and arresting women engaged in window-smashing or who refused to move on when ordered, the police had the greatest difficulty in protecting the women from an unruly crowd of youths, who gathered and hustled every woman wearing the suffragette colors.

In several cases the women were roughly handled. An attempt to duck four of them in the fountain in Trafalgar Square was frustrated by a police posse, which had to ride through the crowd.

The entire deputation of twenty-one women who attempted to make their way into the House of Commons to interview Chancellor Lloyd-George was arrested. The prisoners included Mrs. Drummond and Sylvia Pankhurst, who marched in front. Before starting on their mission, the delegates listened to addresses by Mrs. Pankhurst and other leaders.

IMPROVEMENT THE DUTY OF EVERY ONE.

Try to Do Something Every Day, No Matter How Small It Is.

Every one is both collectively and individually responsible for the part of the world he lives in and should aim to make it and leave it as beautiful as lies in his power. If little opportunity is granted little will be expected, but for that little he should be credited equally with the accomplishments of the more fortunate.

It may fall to the lot of one to be able to plant a few flowers, to another to start a tree or to make two blades of grass grow where was before but one. One may make and keep attractive but one little garden. Another may present to the public a huge park, with funds for its permanent upkeep. Fountains, statues, pictures or other objects given to public institutions or displayed in public places all contribute to the beautification of the world, and all of us are expected to contribute in accordance with means or opportunity afforded.

The reader who has followed thus far may wonder what is expected of him or her or what both may do to contribute their portion. It is not necessary "to stand in public places" to be a benefactor. Home offers the greater opportunity to help beautify the world and make beautiful the lives of those about us. To make home inviting, attractive and satisfying to your family and incidentally to friends and visitors is one of the noblest tasks ever undertaken, the value of which collectively overwhelms that of all parks and public institutions built since the world was first peopled. Interior and exterior should harmonize and be equally attractive, avoiding the overshadowing of the one at the expense of the other. Make your home decoration simple and dignified indoors and out and you have largely fulfilled your duty to all, though your name may never be "emblazoned in the halls of fame"—Los Angeles Times.

IMMIGRATION ACT
BARS ORIENTALSWill Keep Hawaiian Sugar Men
From Getting Laborers

The Hawaiian planters were dealt a blow by the passage by the house at Washington of the Burnett immigration bill. Under the bill as passed, the planters cannot import any more Japanese laborers, because the bill provides that aliens who cannot become citizens of the United States may not be immigrants into this country.

Japanese, under the present naturalization laws, cannot become citizens, and they are, therefore, barred out of Hawaii, if the Burnett Act becomes a law. The planters will also be prevented from importing Spaniards or Portuguese, because another clause in the bill prohibits aliens who cannot read and write their own language or English, from immigrating into this country. The Spanish and Portuguese labor in Hawaii, especially in the cane fields, is illiterate, and this class also would be barred from the Islands by the bill. The result would be that the planters could not import any laborers.

MAKING GOOD CITIZENS.

Human nature demands play as a necessity. If we thwart this demand we are in danger of rearing criminals instead of good citizens, for the starved natures, balked in their natural desires, will turn to evil if they are not helped to the good. Money cannot buy good citizens, but a judicious outlay of a comparatively small sum will do more than any other one thing to turn the activities of child life into the proper and natural channels which lead to good citizenship. * * * It is the very parody upon common sense to appropriate money for playgrounds and refuse it for supervision. That is indeed saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung-hole.—Jacob Riis.

Treatment For Fine Skins.

Some girls have such fine skin that during the cold weather it is necessary for them to wear a veil almost all the time to keep it from chapping. If a protective agent such as powder be used it is absolutely necessary that it be pure, as the more delicate the skin the more care must be exercised in what is used upon it.

The following preparation is most valuable. If properly applied it will protect the skin:

Mix and sift together several times until free from lumps three ounces each of rice flour and rice starch, one and one-half ounces of carbonate of magnesia, one quarter of an ounce of finely powdered orris root, half an ounce of boric acid and ten drops of essence of rose.

Before applying to the face all the skin should first have a previous application of a thin film of cold cream or almond oil.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH SAN FRANCISCO? WILL LOS ANGELES TAKE FIRST PLACE? SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION

What's the matter with San Francisco?

Los Angeles is rapidly overtaking us in point of population; and the people of the south are boasting that, within a few years, San Francisco will be the second city in California.

Yet San Francisco has every natural advantage over Los Angeles. This city has behind it the rich valleys of the San Joaquin and the Sacramento, while Los Angeles is the center of a semi-arid territory, dependent largely on oranges and tourists. San Francisco has a real harbor, while Los Angeles has a hand-made so-called harbor twenty miles away.

It is easy to say that Los Angeles "grows" by the simple process of expanding the municipal limits and embracing communities that are miles distant from the city. The growth of Los Angeles by annexation is, of course, not a real growth at all. But the explanation is not adequate, because it tells us only about Los Angeles; it doesn't tell us what ails San Francisco.

We see our factories moving to Richmond and our people moving into Alameda county, and we must take thought to prevent this exodus of business and population which is draining San Francisco of its life-blood.

Some persons are fond of blaming the labor unions for the movement of factories across the bay. Those who know the facts are aware, of course, that the unions have nothing to do with the matter. Labor is quite as thoroughly organized on the other side as it is on this side. It was, not the fear of labor unions that induced the Standard Oil Company, the Santa Fe Railroad, the Pullman Company and other such concerns to build their shops at Richmond. Those companies established their works where they could get plenty of land cheap, with spur tracks, and rail and water connections. They would prefer to be in San Francisco, near the centers of population, if other conditions were equal.

The board of supervisors is now doing what it can to encourage the location of manufacturing enterprises on this side of the bay by granting spur track privileges and other concessions under proper restrictions. But there should be a definite, organized effort to bring factories to San Francisco and to make this city the great manufacturing center of the west. With cheap fuel from the neighboring oil fields there is no reason, except a lack of proper enterprise, why San Francisco should not become a great factory town.

To keep our population on this side of the bay is another problem. It is easy to say that every employer should compel his men to live in San Francisco; but it is not so easy to tell the wage-earning commuter where he can get on this Peninsula a comfortable abode, with a bit of garden and sunshine, within convenient distance of his work, and with decent transportation service. True, there is plenty of land on this side, and there is no reason except our perversity and lack of foresight for the fact that our population has overflowed into Alameda and Marin counties instead of filling up the Peninsula. But the people will not settle in the southern part of the Peninsula and in San Mateo county until the good roads and adequate railroad service are provided.

The roads leading into San Francisco—the Mission road and the San Bruno road—have been scandalously bad for many years. The San Bruno road is an impassable quagmire during most of the winter. The Mission road is better since the viaduct was completed, but a long pull over College Hill makes it, even in the best of condition, a bad road.

The attention of every citizen of this city should be directed during the next two or three years to the development of the roads and transportation service down the Peninsula.

The Southern Pacific Company has no pressing interest in the Peninsula traffic, for it gets the commuter on the ferries if it doesn't get him on this side. That, perhaps, is the reason why the Southern Pacific intends to build a new passenger depot at Third and Townsend streets, instead of bringing its passenger terminal to Market or Mission streets, where it ought to be. The difficulty of getting to the Southern Pacific station is one of the determining factors in sending people to Alameda county. The Southern Pacific should not be permitted to perpetuate this inconvenience, and to retard the development of the Peninsula by fixing its passenger station permanently on the present site. The Peninsula suburban trains should touch Market or, at least, Mission street, at two points; one down town and one up town. The service should be electrified immediately, and the trains should be made to serve every little settlement, in the foothills as well as along the main line. There is no reason why the suburban train service on the Peninsula should not be as satisfactory as the train service from the Key Route and Southern Pacific moles.

Within a very short while an electric train service should be operated down the Peninsula not only along the bay shore cutoff, but also along the old Southern Pacific line through the Bernal cut. The Bernal cut should be widened—it could be done easily and cheaply—to make a road for vehicles and connected with the Mission road at a point south of College Hill. By this simple contrivance College Hill could be avoided. The steepest grade on the new road would be less than four per cent.

These are only a few of the numerous suggestions for the development of the Peninsula that have been made repeatedly by the Mission Promotion Association. It is time that the downtown interests appreciated the importance to the whole city of these plans for turning the flow of population to the southward. A concentrated effort by representatives of every section should be made immediately to prevent the construction of a passenger station at Third and Townsend streets, to bring about a substitution of electric for steam power in the Peninsula suburban service, to induce the Southern Pacific to establish at least two terminal in or near Market street for its electric suburban service; and to agitate for the widening of the Bernal cut and the establishment of an electric railway service along the old line which has been practically abandoned by the Southern Pacific.—San Francisco Bulletin.

His First Tabasco.

He came from the backwoods and had never eaten oysters before. When the waiter served him a dozen steamed on a plate he picked up the bottle of tabasco sauce and removed the stopper. Then he drenched the oysters with the fiery fluid. There were a few seconds of painful suspense. Then the old man rushed over to the wall, pulled down the fire extinguisher and started to eject the contents toward his parched throat.

"Hold on, there!" shouted the frightened waiter. "Don't you see that is labeled 'For Fire Only?'"

The old man mopped the teardrops from his eyes.

"Waal, gosh all hemlock!" he ejaculated hoarsely. "Wasn't it fire that I swallowed?"—Judge's Library.

WILSON WILL VISIT THE PHILIPPINES

Decides to Make Investigation of Island Conditions

President-elect Wilson plans to personally investigate conditions in the Philippines and Alaska, according to information obtained from one of the governor's closest congressional advisers and from other congressmen who have been to Trenton recently.

The trip to the Philippines, according to the governor's present plan, is to be made soon after the extra session, which will begin about March 15, has ended. This would make the date for the new President's voyage to the Far East about the middle of next September.

Wilson is reported to have fully decided to investigate conditions in the Philippines at first hand. This means that there will be no action by congress on the Jones bill, giving the Filipinos independence in 1921 until after Wilson returns.

The Jones' measure, therefore, probably will not come up in congress for more than a year from this date. A month ago, the bill was scheduled to be considered at this session.

Since Wilson was elected, there has been a steady stream of congressional callers at Trenton, all talking principally on the Philippine situation. Some of these senators told Wilson the Philippines should not be given independence, and others insisted on the passage of the Jones' bill.

Wilson has taken the only method to settle these conflicting statements by personally looking into the situation in the Islands.

Similarly, the governor intends to personally investigate the Alaskan situation, particularly in regard to the clamor on the Pacific Coast for the territory's vast coal lands to be opened to consumption. It is reported he will make the trip to Alaska soon after his return from the Philippines and look into the coal situation thoroughly.

The President-elect already has announced his trip to the Panama Canal, and with his Alaska and Philippine jaunts, may start out to rival Taft's record as a Presidential traveler.

King Alfonso of Spain is likely to pay a visit to the United States some time this summer. The Spanish government is now considering a proposal which emanated from the King himself, who has long desired to visit America. The design for the memorial to Major Archibald Butt, personal aide to President Taft, and Francis D. Millet, the artist, two Washingtonians lost with the Titanic, has been approved by the President. The memorial, a fountain, with a shaft rising from its center, will be on public grounds near the White House. On one side of the shaft, will be a figure in bas-relief representing art, and on the opposite side a figure representing an armed knight. Daniel French, a New York architect, designed the memorial.

Six hundred packages of hair combs and pins were sent out of Leominster, Mass., by parcels post by comb manufacturers. The consignment of combs and pins, altogether, weighed more than a ton and a half, and was shipped by parcels post by manufacturers as an experiment. If they find it works satisfactorily, they will use it exclusively. Many other manufacturers are watching the experiment with close attention, and will follow the lead of the comb manufacturers and use the parcels post for shipments.

William R. Thomas, near Wishing-ton, believes the "ice treatment" has saved his fruit trees from premature budding this winter. When other farmers near his place discovered that the balminess of the weather was starting the buds on their trees, Thomas hustled to town and bought about a ton of ice. He packed and salted a pile around the base of each bearing tree in his orchard, renewing it as the ice melted away. As a result none of the trees showed any sign of budding. The "ice treatment" was continued over two days of "summery" weather.

Army engineers have concluded that it will be impossible to contend with the great Beulah crevasse in the Mississippi River levee system near Greenville, Miss., until next summer. They can "tie" the ends of the broken levee by piling, and prevent further erosion, but it is believed to be impossible to close the gap until low water. In the meantime, it is said, 1000 square miles of corn and cotton land will be under water until April at least.

"The smile that won't come off" appeared on the faces of the 120 members of the Senate and Assembly at Sacramento when it became known that they would receive mileage to and from their homes during the thirty-day recess.

CHECKED COAT IN THREE QUARTER LENGTH

Silk frocks and tailored street gowns of light weight wool and other seasonable materials will be covered in the street next spring by good looking walking coats in three-quarter lengths.

The Next Mistress of the White House.

With the outgoing of Mrs. William Howard Taft, whom the country has loved and honored, there will go into the White House four most attractive women, the president's wife and his three charming daughters.

It has been said that no more refined, unassuming and considerate leaders of the social set have entered Washington in many days than will be these four.

Mrs. Wilson has never essayed to social leadership. She has been much in social life, both as the wife of a university president and mistress of a gubernatorial mansion, but her home is her life. The social glamour of the White House has no appeal for Mrs. Wilson and her daughters, although they are admirably fitted for the high social position. Mrs. Wilson is democratic in manner and life as well as in politics. Her daughters, it has been said, are not only like their mother, but also resemble their distinguished father.

Simple tastes, simple demands, simple living without frills or pretenses, will be their part. Mrs. Wilson was the daughter of a Presbyterian minister, and she has never departed from her "raising." Her ideals of life are high and religious. She is a wide reader and an entertaining talker and an artist of considerable ability. The charms of the three daughters will readily make for them a place in the hearts of Washington society and of the nation.

Margaret Wilson, the eldest, is twenty-six. She is probably the plainest of the three sisters. She is a short, slender, blond girl, wiry and vivacious. She loves golfing, fishing or a dashing game of tennis or baseball. She dances gracefully, rides horseback, swims, plays basketball and tells stories and converses as delightfully as her father. Miss Margaret is the musician of the family, with ambitions to make her career on the concert stage. The White House will probably not alter her plans, as she is devoted to her art.

Miss Jessie, the second sister, is the beauty of the trio and also the more serious. She is a social settlement worker and the youngest member of the nation board of the Young Women's Christian association.

Eleanor, the "baby," is the only one who bears a nickname. To her family and to her intimates she is "Nell." Tall, dark and attractive, she is often taken for the oldest of the Wilson sisters. For the last two years she has been studying art at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts. Miss Eleanor is as lively as her eldest sister and brimful of fun.

The next second lady of the land, Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall, wife of the vice president elect, is not a suffragette, but she is probably one of the cleverest women politicians in the country. She and her husband have never been separated a night through their fifteen years of married life. Mrs.

Giving Your Child a Book.

"What kind of a book shall father bring you?" a small girl was questioned the other day.

"Oh, any book," came the reply with a happy nonchalance, "as long as it can be my very own and stay up in my room."

She voiced the craving of every child, says Carolyn Sherwin Bailey in the Delinquent. Your child needs his very own "five foot" bookshelf which he may grow up with and which will meet the needs of his developing and expanding imagination. But each book that we put on this nursery bookshelf should be selected having in mind what it is going to do for the child.

Will it frighten him? Will it hurt his appreciation of beauty by its rude colors and poor art? Will it give him warped, twisted ideas of his world?

Rather, will the book that you put into your child's hands make him happy? Will its illustrations help him to love good pictures? Will it teach him something?

If a child can have only four books it will be possible to give him between the covers of these four all that he needs in child literature during his earlier years.

One book should be very beautiful pictorially. Every baby loves color, and a good colored picture of one of his Mother Goose friends, his pet animals, his toys, will be a feast for his soul almost. He should be taught care in handling it, and turning its beautiful pages will be his happy privilege.

One book will answer the queries of our dear little "question mark." It should furnish material to be read to the child to help him understand his environment. Every child is wonderfully, buoyantly interested in animals and stars and trees and waters and the land of little creatures down under his feet. Too often we let his questions in regard to nature phenomena pass unheeded. Let us give him a book that will answer them.

Our third book will be a big, magical collection of child stories—those stories that take a child out of himself and into the places of fancy, stories that make children brave, happy, unselfish, good.

One more book, a doing one. It will be perhaps more a mother's book than the child's, for it will give hints and helps for keeping small hands active, child eyes wider open, child brains busy. It will be a book of games, of suggestions for child hand work, a book of child busy-ness.

With these four books or many books of each of these four classes a child will begin his home education in an efficient, result making way.

Rules For Rearing Babies.

Rules for rearing babies, accompanied by the statement that children are not to be regarded as luxuries by the poor, were given out recently by Mrs. George Herrick of Boston, who four months ago became the mother of a boy declared by a number of eugenic authorities to be the finest physical specimen that has come within their experience. Mrs. Herrick's directions are as follows:

"Three essentials are fresh air, light clothing and plenty of good nourishment.

"Society women should forego society's obligations and nurse their own children.

"Every mother should nurse her own child.

"Kissing and fondling of baby should not be permitted for one minute.

"Don't toss baby up in the air like a bouncing ball.

"One great secret of household economy is making your own and your children's clothing.

"Race suicide is the greatest evil of the day.

"The father contributes as much to the health or ill health of a child as the mother."

Marshall also enjoys the distinction of being the only woman to accompany her husband as a gubernatorial candidate from one end of Indiana to the other on a speechmaking tour. She is a woman of keen literary appreciation, and the executive mansion at Philadelphia is full of books, but devoid of bookishness. Somebody has said of her home that it is the kind to make you "just want to sit down and stay to supper."

A Historical Story of the Tower of London

By ESTHER L. DAVIDSON

"What's the matter with you, Klaxon?"

"Matter? Matter enough! At any time my duties are wearing, but since the failure of this Scotch rebellion, wherein Prince Charlie bewitched the people there one and all, I might better be a butcher and kill blockheads than headsman at the Tower."

"Keep your nerve, I pray you, Klaxon. There are many more of these misguided Scots to do away with, and if you fail me I do not know where to look for one to supply your place. It would ill become me, the Lieutenant of the Tower of London, commander of King George's principal stronghold, to turn head dropper. Still, Klaxon, if you fail me and his majesty insists upon keeping on with the bloody work I shall have to swing the ax myself. I shall not be known more than you, for I will wear your mask."

"You're welcome to it, Sir Percy, and the ax as well. I can stand it to send a man to his long home, but they are bringing in young fellows with scarce a beard on their chins, and there is a lassie among them hardly a woman. What they brought her for I know not. They must have a Jeffreys to condemn such persons. For my part, had I been a Scotsman I would have followed young Charlie to the death myself. Out with these German kings, I say! They are taking everything they can get their hands on, and we giving it to them for ruling us. Would that they would get enough and go back to Hanover, where they came from."

"IF THEY KILL MY FATHER I HOPE THEY WILL LET ME GO WITH HIM."

"Be careful, Klaxon, how you talk treason right here in the Tower or perhaps your own neck may lie on the block and some other hand than yours drop a head in the basket."

"No fear of that. There are too many real rebels to be beheaded. But I must get some rest. Tomorrow I shall officiate on Tower hill in the case of some of the finest lairds in Scotland."

Prince Charles Frederick, who went to Scotland from France and led the rebellion of 1745 against the Hanoverian, George II., was by inheritance the rightful king of England. His effort failed largely because he was a Roman Catholic and England had become by that time almost entirely Protestant. Hundreds of Scotch prisoners were taken to London, imprisoned in the Tower and executed on Tower hill just beyond the fortress' walls.

Among these was a certain Cameron MacAlister, who had taken up Prince Charlie's cause and was captured at the battle of Culloden, which resulted so disastrously to the Scotch. When Cameron MacAlister was taken to London his daughter, Mary, seventeen years of age, insisted on going with him. She marched beside him all the way from Edinburgh and on their arrival at London was put into the Tower with the other prisoners, it being supposed that she had been sent, like him, to meet a charge of treason against the (illegitimate) sovereign of the United Kingdom.

It was this Mary MacAlister who was mentioned by the headsman Klaxon. Sir Percy Manning, the lieutenant of the Tower, a young man twenty-seven years of age, had noticed the girl and when he heard her name mentioned shuddered. He had been too busy to inquire into her case, though her devotion to the man she accompanied, her girlish face, her blue eyes, bent lovingly and mournfully on her father, had attracted Sir Percy so far that she had not been out of his mind a moment since.

Though the bloody work of getting rid of the Scotch rebels was but half done, the lieutenant determined to look into the case of the Scotch lassie and learn if she were among those charged with rebellion. That she was a girl and very young was no reason why she should not pay the penalty of treason. Little more than a century before Lady Jane Grey, exactly the same age as this Mary MacAlister, had been beheaded within the courtyard of the Tower, and two of King Henry VIII.'s wives, not much older, had met the same fate on the same spot.

Leaving the executioner with a bottle before him with which to stimulate his overstrained nerves, Sir Percy went to look up Mary MacAlister. He found her in a cell near her father.

"Why are you here?" he asked her. "Because I could not leave dear father to come alone. Will they behead him, sir?" she added, looking eager and wistful at the lieutenant.

"Are you charged with treason against the king?"

"I dinna know as to that, and I dinna care. If they kill my father I hope they'll let me go with him."

Sir Percy longed to take the poor girl in his arms and assure her that if he had the power to save her father he would do so, but he preserved his equanimity, though he could not have done it for long. Fortunately the warden announced that another batch of Scotch rebels were at the traitors' gate, their guards waiting for it to be opened that they might bring the prisoners in. So he went away to receive the new installment of persons doomed either to the block or a long imprisonment.

As soon as the lieutenant had incarcerated these newly arrived persons he examined his list of prisoners and found the name of Cameron MacAlister, but his daughter's name did not appear. What concerned the young man was that the father's name was on the list of those who were to form a spectacle for the populace on Tower hill the morrow.

Between Klaxon, the headsman, and the lieutenant were that sad, sweet face and the words: "I dinna care. If they kill my father I hope they'll let me go with him." Then he fell to thinking how he might save both father and daughter. Locking himself in his office, he strove to invent a plan for getting them out of the Tower and away. He would be obliged to go himself, for he was responsible for MacAlister to the king, and his own head would fall in place of the Scot. Presently Sir Percy called an attendant and summoned the headsman.

"Klaxon," he said when the functionary arrived. "Tomorrow you are to officiate on Tower hill. When you have dropped the heads of all those to be executed save one, stagger, catch at the rail of the scaffold as if for support and declare yourself unable to proceed further with your duties."

"Give me a reason, lieutenant."

"The last prisoner on your list will be the father of the Scotch lassie of whom you spoke to me awhile ago."

"She with the sad face?"

"Yes."

"And will that save her father?"

"For the time being."

When Cameron MacAlister was called forth to execution he deemed it a hardship that he was not permitted to bid his daughter goodbye. He was obliged to witness the death of his comrades. Then when about to lay his head on the block the headsman broke down, being unable to strike the blow, and the doomed man was sent back to his cell in the fortress.

"Good!" exclaimed the lieutenant. "I shall now have time to carry out my plan."

The next night at about 10 o'clock two men sat in a boat on the Thames near the traitors' gate. At 11 the lieutenant went the rounds and, finding every one except the guards in bed, took a uniform to the cell of MacAlister and bade him put it on and follow him. Stopping at Mary's cell, she was liberated, and they went down a staircase leading to the traitor's gate. They were seen by guards; but, since they were the commander, a guard and a girl, no attention was paid to them. Unlocking the gate, the lieutenant gave a whistle, and the boat with the two men in it was rowed in to the steps. The party entered the boat, the lieutenant shutting the gate after him before doing so, and they were pulled down the river to a vessel lying at anchor. As soon as they were aboard the anchor was raised and the ship set sail.

France at that time was the abiding place of Prince Charlie, and any of his adherents who could reach her coast were safe. The ship in which our party had embarked succeeded in getting to the mouth of the river without being intercepted and stood across the channel. Before she was out of the river it was known in London that a prisoner was missing, and no one could tell what had become of the lieutenant of the Tower.

The party reached the coast of France safely. Cameron MacAlister and his daughter marveled how it had all come about, and Mary was ready to fall on her knees and worship the man who had planned the escape.

They went to Paris, where they found the prince, and Sir Percy announced himself as one of his adherents. But the cause of the pretender, as he was called, was not again destined to trouble the kings of England. Indeed, as the years passed it subsided into not even a pretense. When all danger from it had passed Cameron MacAlister was permitted to return to Scotland, and his estates, which had been forfeited to the crown, were returned to him.

Sir Percy Manning's fault was too great for him to expect clemency, and he never dared return to England. But when the troubles consequent upon the Scotch rebellion had died out he went to the north of Scotland, where he lived in retirement.

He met the reward for which he put his head in jeopardy—the love of Mary MacAlister. They were married soon after their arrival in France and went together to Scotland.

The Toys of 1913.

Modern toys for children are marvels of ingenuity. The latest is a model yacht about three feet long which runs by electricity with a motor and storage battery with a speed of 188 feet per minute. The motor is reversible, and it is steered from the wheel on the bridge. There are searchlights and running lights, which are operated by a switch. Naturally there are no sails and only one deck. There are two little lifeboats and on the deck a small velvet seat with three miniature chairs and three wee cushions lend a suggestion of realism. A moving picture machine for home use, sold with an arrangement with the store to exchange the films, is another source of unlimited delight to the active child.

Comfort For Baby.

Eiderdown flannel booties for the baby are excellent for very cold weather. They are silk lined with pink or blue and ornamented with a small design in ribbon work. They are hand made and are washable. Booties for the baby may also be had now made of corduroy, but either of these kinds should be exchanged for something of a lighter weight in a warm room or on mild days. A hot water bottle for the baby to hold and play with, so that its hands may be kept warm, is dressed as a rabbit doll called "Peter Rabbit." It holds one pint of hot water and is priced at $1.

SAN BRUNO NEWS.

Mrs. J. Bellamy will move to San Bruno to-day.

Mrs. S. Mackey has been reported on the sick list.

L. G. Claussen has leased Ed. Nether-ton's home in Belle Air Park.

Valentines are now on display at Petersen's store. Come and look them over.

Mrs. Hyde Green, who has been very ill for some time, is now improving slowly.

Miss Lizzie Harich of Huntington Park is at the Juilly hospital in Lomita Park.

In the case of Palloo vs. Downar, Justice Davis rendered judgment in favor Palloo.

The undertaking firm of Craig, Cochran & Co. will be represented here by W. N. Holliday. Advt.

The Hall Association of Lomita Park will have a masquerade this evening in the school house.

Miss Gallegher and friends, of Huntington Park, spent Sunday among old friends in San Bruno.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. C. Adams, Wednesday, January 29th, twin girls, weighing, respectively, 6½ and 8 pounds.

Robert Fowler, the much talked of aviator, was out Tuesday, January 28th, to inspect Arthur Petersen's new machine.

Mrs. W. Henry received a phone message from relatives saying her brother died suddenly in Martinez of typhoid fever.

A stag party was held last Monday night in Green's Hall. The young people enjoyed themselves as only a bunch of boys can and left for home 2 a. m.

Arthur Petersen at the last minute did not go to Portland with his machine, because he lacked experience in managing one, and is now practicing in Silva's field for a short time.

Paul Fisher's eldest daughter, Matilda, was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco, for an operation for appendicitis last Thursday. At last accounts she was slowly improving.

The Japanese aviators who are this week practicing in the Silva field near San Bruno tried to land near a fence and struck it. Fortunately they were not injured, but the fence is pretty good kindling wood.

Mrs. C. Hirrel spent Thursday, January 23d, with friends at Half Moon Bay, and on Sunday made the trip to Point Richmond to visit her sister at that place. It has been some time since Mrs. Hirrel was in Point Richmond.

C. Scholkoph, is lucky (?). He received the gold watch and is very proud of it. On arriving home he found the watch had only one hand and ticked like a twenty-five-cent alarm clock. For further particulars ask the barber.

Mr. Wheeler of first addition met with an accident on San Mateo avenue Wednesday, January 29th. A new motor car to be delivered to the owner in San Mateo ran into Mr. Wheeler's buggy and completely demolished it, but fortunately Mr. Wheeler escaped with only a few slight scratches.

During the past ten days San Bruno has been thoroughly stirred. Prosper Bou, one of its citizens shot and killed two geese which were pursuing his three year old child in a threatening manner. Previously these same geese had rolled the little boy in the mud. The geese belonged to Mrs. Bridget Wheeler. She caused a charge of malicious mischief to be placed against Bou. He was arrested and on last Wednesday was tried before a jury. He justified his act on the ground that the life of his child was endangered. The jury found him not guilty. James T. O'Keefe conducted the prosecution and J. W. Coleberd the defense.

The Women of Woodcraft held its annual installation of officers on Thursday, January 30th, in Green's Hall. The officers installed were: Mrs. Venable, guardian neighbor; Mrs. Hatfield, advisor; Mrs. Rob Valentine, magician; Mrs. Frager, banker; Robt. Valentine, clerk; Mrs. Osmer, Mrs. Petersen and Mrs. Magnussen, managers; Mrs. Ruby Madsen, musician; Mrs. Edwards, installing officer. Mrs. Cora Wilson, grand manager of the

At the conclusion of the session the members repaired to the banquet hall where a bountiful repast was served. Several invited guests were present enjoyed the hospitality of the Circle. Music and dancing took place until a late hour.

The San Bruno Homestead, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, installed officers for the ensuing year on Tuesday, January 14th. Dr. O. G. At the close of the business session Mr. and Mrs. John Ellessan were presented with a handsome rocking chair. Refreshments and a social hour closed the remainder of the evening.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

San Bruno was in a whirl of social events the past week. The following are a few of them.

Mrs. Toso entertained the Women's Social and Improvement Club Friday, January 31st. Refreshments were served and a general good time was had by all present.

J. M. Custer, our energetic real estate dealer, was the genial host of quite an elaborate six o'clock dinner party at his home Sunday. His culinary ability was demonstrated to the surprise and delight of all present. The table fairly groaned with delicacies of the season. ## PAMM EXPOSITION NEW.

What the Ferris Wheel was to the Chicago Exposition, and the Eiffel Tower was to the Paris Exposition, as an advertising feature, the "Aeroscope," a wonderful and novel contrivance that will raise passengers to an elevation of 268 feet, which is four an elevation of 268 feet, which is four feet higher than the elevation reached by the Ferris Wheel, promises to add to the attractiveness of the 1915 World's Fair. The "Aeroscope" consists of crane arms 240 feet in length, mounted on a tower 50 feet high. The crane arms are made up of two parallel riveted trusses. The short arm is 40 feet long and carries a counterweight to balance the weight of the long, or 200-foot arm, which carries the cage for passengers. The cage is double-decked and the operator who controls it is located in the center of the upper deck. The tower is a structural steel framework, resting on a circular rack on a concrete foundation. This circular rack permits of the rotation of the tower about its central vertical axis. At the top of the tower is a horizontal trunnion shaft on which the crane revolves. The cage is supported on a trunnion shaft fixed to the extreme end of the 200-foot arm. This cage swings above and on each side of the trunnion shaft, always remaining in an upright position due to the combined action of a counterweight and parallel guide rod.

Allies Complete Draft of Final Note but Delay Its Delivery

A well-informed correspondent at Tiflis says that Russia has mobilized fully a force of nearly 70,000 men on the Turkish-Armenian frontier.

An Odessa dispatch reports that the Armenians of Bitlis, Van and Mush are in peril, and are appealing for Russian aid through the Russian consuls. It is generally believed, according to the correspondent, that Russian occupation of the Turkish-Armenian districts is inevitable.

Public meetings are being held throughout the country in protest against the weakness of the Government in enforcing the claims against Bulgaria.

With the presentation of their note to the Turkish delegation, the date for which, however, has not yet been fixed, some of the Balkan delegates consider that their mission in London will be ended. The Greek Premier, Venizelos, announced that he would leave before the end of the week and the others within the next few days.

Despite this, the diplomats have not given up hope, and many still think the Balkan note is another attempt to exercise pressure on Turkey and that the allies really intend to await the answer of the new Turkish Cabinet to the joint note of Europe, a course which the powers always have advised.

The evident reluctance of the Balkan allies to resort to a resumption of hostilities, it is thought, may be due to their failure to arrange the difficulty with Roumania.

A rumor is in circulation in Sofia that Roumania is about to present an ultimatum to Bulgaria. The Roumanian Government has just arranged for an advance of $10,000,000 from a German syndicate on treasury notes, and, according to a Vienna report, the Russian Emperor has conferred the order of the White Eagle on the Roumanian Premier, Titu Majoresco.

It scarcely can be doubted that apprehension regarding the attitude of Roumania and Russia in the event of the resumption of the war is making the allies pause.

The Vienna Reichspost asserts that Bulgaria is willing to concede the Roumanian territorial claims provided Roumania will take an active share in the military operations against Turkey.

Following a conference in Fresno between Irving Bristol, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and ministers of the local churches, it was announced that the wet and dry issue would be placed again before the voters at the next city election in May.

Restaurant proprietors of San Francisco have taken the initial step to safeguard visitors who will come to San Francisco during the exposition of 1915 against exorbitant prices. Their first step will be to advertise that exhibition prices will not be charged for meals, as has been the case in other cities.

Word has been received by State Horticultural Commissioner A. J. Cook at Sacramento to the effect that where smudging was practiced during the recent freeze in Southern California, the growers were able to save practically their entire crop. Where smudging was not in vogue, however, the loss of oranges and lemons was enormous.

Los Angeles women will have to depend upon their prowess in wielding a hatpin in protecting themselves from hold-up men, according to Chief Sebastian. Mrs. William Kent was granted a permit to carry a revolver, but later Chief Sebastian revoked it, declaring that it was not the policy of the Police Department to allow women to carry revolvers or other weapons classified as "deadly."

Backed by many of the city's leading financiers, a children's theater costing $160,000 is to be built immediately at an important corner on the edge of the business district of Los Angeles. Children are to be taken there and taught to act, to make their own scenery, stage their own plays and be responsible for all the stage technique. They will receive salaries for their work and their audiences will be composed only of children.

Buried in the debris of a fire for eighteen days and still alive, is the record for a chicken discovered at Suisun. One of the buildings destroyed by fire a few weeks ago, in the rear of the Arlington Hotel, was used as a chicken house, and it was naturally supposed that all of the fowls were well roasted. But when some workmen were cleaning up the rubbish a live chicken was uncovered, which immediately began to search for food. A red ribbon was tied on the bird, so that it will not be killed when delectable edibles are required for the table.

Sixty young women of the Visalia High School dashed with shrieks of fear to tops of desks and other elevated positions at the high school assembly recently when eighty lusty rats capered across the floors. Several of the girls narrowly escaped hysterics. Superintendent Rowell, in charge of the assembly hour, finally captured the rodents and ordered an immediate investigation to find the guilty students. Later in the day he announced that at least one of the young men would be expelled, and possibly six or seven conspirators would be asked to leave.

A sweeping investigation of the conditions of living in Los Angeles has been authorized by the City Council. An investigation commission, named by the members of the Council's Industrial Committee, was appointed to learn the cost of living, the wages paid, the comparative industrial conditions, cost of rent and transportation, as compared with other cities; charges that children are forced to live upon the contents of garbage cans at the city market; charges that dealers are destroying food products in preference to lowering the prices, and accusations that a fish trust is in existence there.

Orders for State text-books being distributed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Hyatt under the free text-book amendment have reached about 900 in number. How many books have been sent out, however, it will be impossible to say until the office books are footed up at the end of the month. The largest order received was from Los Angeles, which trimmed its figures to 46,772. This order is now being filled. San Francisco asked 33,500 books and Oakland 24,300. Hyatt reports that practically all the districts and the counties which sent in their orders early have been supplied.

United States Judge Cushman of Tacoma, Wash., refused to grant the application for a writ of habeas corpus asked by John Grant Lyman, formerly of Los Angeles, who alleges he is confined in McNeill's Island Prison for conspiring to do something he had a legal right to do. Lyman is serving eighteen months for conspiring to escape from the custody of the Federal Marshal of the Northern California district, following his arrest in San Francisco on a charge of using the mails to defraud in Los Angeles. He demanded his release on the ground that there is no Federal law against a prisoner trying to escape.

Electrocution was substituted for hanging as the official form of capital punishment in Vermont, when Governor Fletcher signed a bill to this effect. Each branch of the legislature voted in favor of the measure. Officials stated that the execution of Arthur Bosworth, who was to have been hanged for the murder of Mabel La Belle, would be the last official hanging in that state. Bosworth was reprieved by Governor Fletcher, who advanced the date of the murderer's execution to January 2, 1914.
